

Acknowledgments

This report was prepared by the research section of the Bureau of Research and Education, Division of Workers' Compensation. Specific credit should be given to Will Sherman, Systems Project Analyst, for extracting data files used to generate the statistics; to Duncan Hoehn, Research Associate, for writing and editing analysis and for document layout work; to Katy Harris, a senior researcher, for investigative work to resolve data issues, for SAS programming to generate tables and figures, and for writing and editing analysis; and to Ken Baugh, section coordinator and senior researcher, for investigative work to resolve data issues, for SAS programming to generate tables and figures, and for writing, editing and document layout work.

From the Employee Assistance Office John Bailey provided pivotal information on programs and procedures that helped to clarify the data on informal dispute resolution, and Jacqueline Duval answered questions about the data entry of Petitions for Benefits. Kim Cote from the Information Management Center helped to clarify data issues arising from the division's conversion to a new data system in March 2000. From the Office of Judges of Compensation Claims Cindy Wingle provided the statistics on mediation. From the First District Court of Appeal Treina Dove provided the statistics on mediation by that high court.

Final acknowledgment must be made of the day-to-day work of data entry performed by Examiners in the division, whether in the Employee Assistance Office, the Bureau of Monitoring and Audit, or the Bureau of Research and Education. Without this work, statistical information would be unavailable. Particular recognition should be made of the Examiners who code and input judges' orders: Trudy Fleming, Becky Gibbs, Debbie Golden, and Jeannie Paugh. Their productivity and accuracy have been exemplary.
